Introduction to Photography

This four-session introductory photography series guides students to progress beyond taking snapshots to creating photographs. We begin by exploring your camera's capabilities and learn how to manually adjust for shutter speed, aperture and film speed. This series will also help you improve your understanding of exposure, composition, light, depth-of-field, and perspective. Each one and a half-hour session includes time for creating photographs in and around the Bob Jones Nature Center and Preserve. Students need to bring a camera and the camera manual. Students should also bring a tripod if they have one. A digital SLR or compact camera with manual controls is essential for this class.

Photography Classes

Intermediate Photography

This four-session intermediate photography series builds on the experience and skills learned in Introduction to Photography. Each one and a half-hour session guides students to increase their knowledge of the tools and techniques essential to creating photographs and to see the world more creatively. Students are introduced to an effective digital workflow using Picassa 3, Adobe Lightroom and/or Adobe Photoshop. The class includes time for photographing in and around the Bob Jones Nature Center and Preserve and for critiquing those photographs to gain insight. Students need to bring a camera and a camera manual. A digital SLR or compact camera with manual controls is essential for this class, and a tripod and a laptop with processing software loaded will be beneficial.
